FOUR PER CENT. DEBENTURE LOAN 1907

SIXTY YEARS—Rs. 44,00,000.

WITH the Sanction of the Government of India and under the provisions of Sections 39-42 of the Bombay Port Trust Act, 1879, and of Section 2 of Act I of 1881, and of Act I of 1899, the Trustees of the Port of Bombay invite tenders for Port Trust Debentures to the extent in the aggregate of Rs. 44 Lakhs.

The Trustees reserve to themselves the right of refusing all or any of the tenders if they consider the rates offered to be too low, but, subject to this reservation, allotments will be made to the highest Tenderers, and rateably to the Tenderers offering the lowest rate accepted by the Trustees, provided that the undernoted will be issued if the amount distributable to any tenderer is less than Rs. 500.

These Debentures will be issued for sums of Rs. 500 or multiples of Rs. 500 as may be required; they will be repayable to holder in sixty years, and will bear interest at 4 per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly on the 1st May and 1st November. 2 per cent. of the amount tendered must be deposited on application, 3 per cent. on allotment, and the balance 95 per cent. on or before 31st January 1908. Interest will accrue on these respective instalments from the date of their payment.

The deposit of 2 per cent. on application will be returned (without interest) if no allotment is made, and it and the further deposit of 3 per cent. on allotment with any interest accrued thereon will be forfeited if an allotment is not fully taken up by the 31st January 1908.

Tenders will be received by the Secretary, Port Trust, up to one o'clock p.m. (Standard Time), on TUESDAY, 13th August 1907 and they will thereafter be opened in the presence of the Chairman of the Port Trust.

Printed forms of Tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Port Trust, at whose Office a form of the Debenture to be issued can be seen.

Under Clause 41 of the Bombay Port Trust Act, 1879, the interest on these Debentures will form a charge on the Trustees' revenue PRIOR to the charge of interest on any portion of the Trustees' debt to Government which may, from time to time, be owing.

In accordance with the power contained in Section 20, clause (f), of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, the Bombay High Court has passed a rule declaring that Trust property consisting of money may be invested in debentures issued by the Trustees of the Port of Bombay under the Bombay Port Trust Act (Bombay Act VI of 1879) until further order. Orders to the same effect have been passed by the Chief Courts and Authorities of Madras, Punjaub Coorg, Sind and Lower Burmah.

Dr. LAZARUS'S

SPLEEN PILLS

Have cured thousands of cases of enlarged Spleen.

Full directions given in wrapper.

PREPARED (ONLY) BY

E. J. LAZARUS & CO.,
MEDICAL HALL, BENARES.

In Bottles, at Rs. 1-4 each; Box and Packing, 2 as.

From Mr. E. KIDAY, Dinapore:—"I have always had in mind your wonderful cure of my daughter's illness of the Spleen. She was, as is well known by many, given up as incurable, her complaint being chronic. When you took her in hand I really had no hopes that she would ever have recovered. I write this thanking you for restoring her.

"I have great confidence in your Spleen Pills and Essence of Chiretta which I recommend to all as a specific for the diseases for which they are given. You have permission to give publicity to the above for the good of the public."

Mr. W. J. MONTGOMERY, Apothecary, Madras Medical Establishment, writes:—"You are at liberty to publish the following few lines which bear testimony to the efficacy of your Spleen Pills in the "Pioneer" if you think fit. I have used Dr. Lazarus's Spleen Pills in several cases of enlarged Spleen, &c. In all of them the cure was decidedly rapid, though the dose recommended has been found by me too strong for some. I have used nothing equal to it, and would strongly recommend those suffering from the above complaint never to be without taking a course of these Pills, and I am quite certain, that these Pills will effect a cure when other remedies have failed." Jalna, Deccan.

From J.T. MURRAY, Esquire, Engineer, I.V.S.R. Flotilla, Sukkur:—"The phial of Dr. Lazarus's Spleen Pills I purchased of you last month I am happy to say has made a thorough cure of my daughter's (3 years of age) enlarged Spleen. I recommend the Pills to all, young and old, who may be suffering with their Spleen. I have no objection to your making this known to the public."

From WELLINGTON BEATTY, Esq., Scindia Paper Mills, Gwalior:—"I shall be obliged by your sending me as early as possible, per V. P. post, three (3) Bottles Spleen Pills, two (2) Bottles Chiretta. The last supply I got from you of Pills and Chiretta was the means of saving three persons who had been troubled with Spleen: one for 33 years, one for 5 years and the other for seven years. You are at liberty to make any use of this as you like."

From BABU TARA NATH SEN, Sulkia, Coldanga Lane, No. 27, Howrah:—"Will you kindly send at your earliest convenience one phial of your Spleen Pills, per V. P. Post, to the following direction. On the recommendation of a friend who had some spare Pills, I administered your Pills which produced marvellous effect. I may safely say that yours is the best medicine that I have ever come across, as I have exhausted the whole category of medicines in all the different departments of medical science without any effect."

From EDWARD INGLIS, Esq., the Rest Camp Tundla, E. I. R.—"Please send per V.-P. P. P. st, two phials of your Spleen Pills. I am very glad to say I have derived much comfort in the use of your Spleen Pills, and I think these two bottles will work a complete cure. I feel when I return thanks for my recovery that a blessing is also invoked on you. You may use this testimony to the efficacy of your Spleen Pills any way you like."

BRAIN-FAG VS. SECRET OF SUCCESS.

BRAIN fag or loss of mental concentration, is one of the greatest disabilities a brain worker can suffer from. It prevents him doing full Justice to himself and forms a serious barrier to his success in life. If a man is to be efficient and successful, he must be possessed of a sound reliable memory; for memory is the basis of all brain work. The better the memory, the more active and prolific the brain.

PROF. JAMES'

ELECTRO-TONIC PEARLS

Positively cure failing memory and restore Brain-Fag, Incapacity for study or business, General Debility, Premature Decay of Exhausted Vitality, the result of overwork.

Their marvellous curative effects are manifested from the first day of their administration by a remarkable increase of Nerve and Intellectual Power with a feeling of courage, strength and comfort. Digestion is invigorated, appetite increases wonderfully, bowels becomes regular, countenance clear and ruddy, the eyes bright, sight improved, the step and gait again elastic and determined, the temper cheerful, the brain again active, memory tenacious, bodily nourishment increased and energy restored.

At opening to-day nearly all Banks quoted 1/4d for T. T. and 1s. 4 1/32d. for demand Bank bills, but there was one Bank prepared to meet the market for Telegraphic at 1s. 4 1/32d. There was very little buying at the rate and it is probably available at the close. Considering that this is the day preceding the settlement, there has been comparatively little doing. To-night options have to be declared and thereafter there will be a good deal doing with a view to arranging to-morrow's account. Rates opened this morning at 96⅞ for the settlement, and without much business passing soon fell 1/16 all round. In the afternoon the quotation was steady at 96 11/16 but towards the close the tone became quiet and there were small sellers at the lower quotation. The second settlement is steady at 96 9/16. Calcutta rates are advised as 96⅞ for ready and 96¼ for delivery forward in a month.

Market Report :—
The market remains quiet and there is almost nothing doing in new crop—the little enquiry there is being only below current quotations. Owing to the difficulty in getting the required selection, Exporters and mills have not been able to put through much business.

In the Bazaar sellers are keeping rates steady and few transactions are reported.

THE death has occurred at Pound Farm Cottage, in the village of Rayne, Essex, of Charles Claydon, who was ninety-four years of age. He was born in the thatched cottage where he died, and he lived there all his life. He worked as a labourer upon Pound Farm from the time he was six years of age until a few years ago, when he became physically unfit for labour, but was allowed to continue in the farm cottage, and to end his days there.

THE CHINA YARN MARKET.

HONGKONG.

Messrs. Phirozsha B. Petit & Co., writing from Honkong on July 12 report on the yarn market as follows :—

Our last circular was dated the 28th June.

The steadier tone of our yarn market reported by last mail has livened up to a briskness and activity so conspicuous by their absence for months past. The business reported has been on a large and extensive scale in almost all counts and descriptions. Whereas blanks have represented the columns overleaf against a number of mills for some time past they are to-day almost without exception, filled by numerals representing the actual figures at which transactions are reported to have taken place during the past fortnight. At the same time prices show an appreciation all round of from dol. 1 to dol 3 per bale, while superior favourite spinnings of No. 10s. have established a notable advance of from dol. to 6 per bale. It is reported that 6,000 bales have been contracted for forward delivery.

The impression has got abroad among Chinese dealers that transactions aggregating some 30,000 bales have recently been put through for the Western markets. This extensive purchase was confined to the better known chooes of Nos. 10s. and 12s. In the event of the report being confirmed, there will no longer be any dependence (as mentioned in our circular No. 47 of 28th ult.) of the Bombay mill-owners upon the Far Eastern markets for their manufactures. Realising the prospective change between producers and Eastern buyers, and apprehending a shortage in the supply of the favourite spinnings of Nos. 10s. and 12s., local Chinese dealers have gone in for extensive engagements which, in the light of the slow clearances, might be taken as more or less of the nature of speculative purchases. It is to be hoped that the off-take might show greater activity shortly, as unle s purchases are cleared, stocks will soon accumulate to the prejudice of dealers and importers. Accumulation is certain to lead to depreciation in values.

In other quarters, the recent briskness in demand is attributed not so much to the spirit of speculation but to the rise in the price of Cotton. The cabled report of an advance in the price of the staple in the American and European markets has created a belief in the minds of Yarn dealers that the advance in Cotton will be reflected in an advance also in the price of the Indian commodity.

Latest country advices confirm the report of a partial failure in the rice crop. Thanks to the benevolent measures of the powerful charitable institutions of Canton; they are continuing the policy of importing rice in bulk from Annam and Siam for cheap disposal in the districts of the Southern Provinces wherein the crop has been disappointing.

The third silk crop is reported to be good and plentiful, resulting in high price for cocoons dropping some 25 per cent. A bountiful silk crop might, in a measure, make up for the poor rice harvest. So that the prospects of the consuming districts for cotton yarn may not appear so gloomy after all.

The market closes firm.

Sales :—365 bales of No. 6s., 50 bales of No. 8s., 6,895 bales of No. 10s., 2,245 bales of No. 12s. 1 455 bales of No. 16s.; and 3,190 bales of No. 20s.; in all about 14,190. bales.

SHANGHAI.

The same firm reports from Shanghai in July 6.

As anticipated in our last Report, the continued firmness of the cotton market has brought about a general rise in the prices of Indian Spinnings. During the period under Report the sales amounted to about 14,400 beles, more than one-half of which represent No. 10s, which brought from Tls. 2 to Tls. 2 1/2 more per bale. There has been a good demand for No. 20s. also at an advance of about Tls. 2 per bale. The other counts, too, have found buyers who were willing to pay Tl. 1,50 to Tls 2 more per bale. The news from Bombay that the yarn market there is strong has enabled importers to name their own prices which in many cases dealers had to give. The firm attitude, adopted by the importers in respect to prices, has, however, tended to curtail the amount of sales. Clearances have been fairly satisfactory. At the close the tone of the market is firm.

No. 10s. Tientsin and Tsechuen have been the chief buyers. Kiaochow and the River Ports also have taken a decent quantity. About 8,050 bales have changed hands.

No. 12s. There has been a good demand for Kiaochow and the River Ports. Sales about 1,150 bales.

No. 16s. Have met with most attention from Kiukiang and Chinkiang. Sales about 1,100 bales.

No. 20s. Szechuen, Hankow, Kiukiang and Kiaochow have paid attention to this count. Sales about 4,100 bales.

Total sales of Indian yarn during the fortnight about 14,400 bales.

Arrivals of Indian yarn during the fortnight about 12,579 bales.

Estimated unsold stock about 85,000 bales.

Sold but uncleared stock about 50,000 bales.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 31, 1907.

MINING IN INDIA.

MR. W. H. PICKERING, Chief Inspector of Mines in India, has just issued a highly instructive report on the mines of this country. It is not, as the compiler explains, a complete statistical review of Indian Mining and analagous industries, but a report relating entirely to the administration of the Indian Mines Act; yet it gives us in a convenient form much information which is not otherwise so readily obtained. Moreover, although the report is the first of its kind, it is altogether a praiseworthy document. It shows us the progress of the Mining Industry and shows that, in the year 1906, the average number of persons working in and about mines was 128,666 of whom 80,518 worked underground and 48,508 on the surface. Of the total, 83,053 were adult males, 39,582 adult females and 6,031 children under twelve years of age—an increase on the year of 17·4 per cent. The development of labour in a new industry, writes Mr. Pickering, is of great interest from an economical and from a physiological point of view. This is especially the case in India where the all-round handy-man is rare and where labour, for the most part, runs in the grooves made by caste and long custom. The caste system has made the Indian a natural specialist, and the Chief Inspector observes that "this is likely to increase the efficiency of the workers, considered as a whole, when the industry has reached the stage where division of labour or specialisation is desirable; but it will be necessary if the full value of this is to be obtained, for those responsible for training the workers to make intelligent use of the gifts and peculiarities of the people. He regards mining, as in most cases, a by-product for the Indian. The miner is commonly the occupier of a plot of land upon which he can raise enough food to provide for his modest wants. Owing to the rapid increase of the mining population in the coal-mining districts, it is palpable that in the near future, all the land near the mines, capable of raising crops will be under cultivation and that the mines will be obliged to depend solely upon mining for their livelihood. There are, it appears, many other signs which point to the conclusion that the evolution of a mining caste or class has already begun. Mine managers can help this evolution to develop on the proper lines if they will take the personal trouble to study the prejudice and customs of those under their charge. This, as Mr. Pickering points out, is of the greatest importance, for it is comparatively useless to introduce improvements in appliances and machinery if "the man behind the gun" is not efficient. That the Indian miner is capable of acquiring considerable skill he has given ample proof, as is duly recorded in the report before us.

The habits, characteristics and degree of efficiency attained by miners differ very greatly. Punjabis, the Santhals of Chota Nagpur and the Telugu-speaking natives of Madras are considered likely to become the best miners. Though the Burman has often been described as most incorrigibly lazy, in the experience of the Chief Inspector of Mines, this hardly appears to be the fact. The Burmans are small but strong and of an athletic build, and when working for their own hands in the ruby mines or oil-fields, where they have hereditary rights, they show considerable energy and skill. Their method of timbering mines or oil-fields is both effective and ingenious. The country is at present so thinly populated and is so rich and fertile that the Burmans are not easily tempted to sell their labour to the mines. Yet the happiest mining district in the world, in Mr. Pickering's view, is perhaps to be found at Mogok where the rubies are mined. The supply of labour is unfailing. A large number of Burmans, with their families, work in the mines. And with them many Shan-Chinese. To these latter no allowances, except a free supply of excellent water, are given and they make their own housing arrangements. The simple rupee commends itself to their minds and they come in freely without any recruiting or other inducement. They are very strong, muscular men, hard and steady workers, and are cheerful and amenable to discipline. They and the Burman agree very well, neither being troubled with caste prejudices and being somewhat alike in temperament. An air of cheerful prosperity covers all the workers alike and is the most pleasing feature of this outlying mining district. Of mining hands generally, we are told that the tendency of labourers to emigrate to the South African mines involves serious possibilities so far as our own mining operations are concerned. Higher pay, shorter hours and better housing are the inducements, and the Natal managers prefer our men as, although not so powerful as the Kaffir, they are more skilful and more reliable. If labour is to be attracted to the Indian mines, therefore, more suitable housing arrangements will be necessary though the Indian leaves his place in the jungle. At the present time no attention is paid to the tastes and desires of the tenants. They are built without the necessary verandah and though the Indian miner earns good wages, "to him money is not everything; he is sensible enough to consider comfort and this is one reason which draws him back to his old house where he can take his ease in congenial surroundings." The remedy seems simple enough and it would be well if managers put Mr. Pickering's suggestion to the test.

The report gives us much information as to the output of minerals from the Indian mines, which is interesting reading. Compared with the preceding year, 1906 showed an increase of 1,349,884 tons of coal. The output exceeded nine million tons, the vast bulk being raised in Bengal. The increase in coal equalled 17·4 per cent., mica 97·4, manganese ore 113·7, gems 49·2 and salt 25·4. The coal trade would have been much greater and the mines will meet a greater demand but for the lack of the means of transport. The shortage of wagons causes a great outcry among miners as among other dealers and until cheap fuel can be supplied, wherever wanted, the industrial development of India must be retarded. The growth of the output of coal in Assam, Baluchistan and the Punjab, is commented upon as also the reduction in the Central Provinces, due to the loss of the Warora colliery, Pench valley coal is increasing in quantity and the development of these mines and of those at Ballarpur, the output of the Central Provinces is considered certain to increase in the near future. Mica is becoming more profitable because of the demand for small mica films which were formerly thrown away. Of manganese ore Mr. Pickering observes that it has apparently obtained a firm hold of the markets of the world, for the output was more than double that of the preceding year, having increased from 204,194 tons to 436,442. It is a regrettable fact, he adds, that practically the whole of the manganese-ore is exported and that, therefore, India receives only a small percentage of the profit which the possession of large deposits of a mineral of such great potential value should legitimately give her. We are told that the mines in the Dharwar gold-fields are developing on sound lines, but though ore was raised during the year, none was crushed; at the same time a considerable output of gold is to be expected during the current year. As to rubies it is not possible to obtain figures of labour and output in all mines, but it is regarded as "certain that large quantities of gems are obtained, some of them being rubies of great value." In the working of all the mines, counted as such within the meaning of the Act, there were 84 fatal accidents in the year, involving the loss of 106 lives, this being the greatest loss on record for British India. The increase however was but a natural one, due to the expansion and activity of the mining industry and to the increasingly difficult and dangerous conditions of mining work. Several accidents, with the sinister possibilities of serious mining disasters involving the loss of a large number of lives, occurred during the year, but it is satisfactory to know that the death-rate by casualties is remarkably small and that full precautions are taken to avoid their occurrence.

THE LATE PROF. KUNO FISCHER.

STUDENTS of philosophy all over the world will regret the demise, at the time the mail left, of the veteran German philosopher. Kuno Fischer, at the ripe age of eighty-three. He was very well known to the English-speaking world, and all his important works have been translated into English and are familiar to it. He was born during the life time of the great German philosopher Hegel who died in 1831; and his birth in 1824 was only twenty years removed from Kant's death. Kant died at the age of eighty, and Kuno Fischer has died at even a greater age than his master whom he took so much pain throughout his life to explain and expound. His life, like that of most philosophers, is uneventful as he was engaged throughout his long life as a student and a teacher at one or the other of the great German Universities. Being a Silesian by birth, he was educated at Leipzig and Halle, and began his career as a teacher of philosophy in 1850 at the University of Heidelberg in Baden. But his stay then was short, as three years later he was deprived of his post on account of a charge of pantheism which was brought against the first volume of his history of modern philosophy, then recently published. During the three next years he published ten more volumes, the third being on our English philosopher Bacon and his works, which was at once translated in 1850 by Orenford, a prominent critic of the day, and became a standard exposition of that philosopher's system and method. In 1856 he was called to the University of Jena to fill the chair once held there by the famous philosopher Fickte, and taught there for sixteen years. There he continued his great history and published his fourth and fifth volumes dealing with Kant and Fickte. In 1872 he was delighted to return to his old Heidelberg in the place of another famous man Edouard Zeller who became professor at Berlin. At this famous university of Heidelberg, where scholars like Schlosser, Gervinus, the great Shakespearian critic, Bunsen, afterwards the well known diplomatic, and others had been professors, Fischer remained for more than thirty years. Here he completed his great history in 1877 with a volume on Schelling. In later years he re-wrote for a new edition this entire work on which his great fame rests. It is really what the Germans delight to call a monumental work, and is the best historical exposition of modern philosophy in any language. It has been translated into French and other languages, the English translation being not quite complete. The two works on the history of philosophy, best known beyond Germany and most appreciated, are the history of modern philosophy by Kuno Fischer and that of ancient Greek philosophy by Edouard Zeller. They are the most learned, and what is rare in such works, most lurid expositions of philosophy. Fischer's standpoint is what is called new-Hegelian, though he criticises, in several important points, Hegel very severely. His other great work is his system of Logic and Metaphysic. He is one of the ablest expounders of Kant and makes that somewhat nebulous philosopher clearly understood, a rare gift among Kant's disciples. Besides his volume on the subject in his history, he wrote another called a critique of Kant which Prof. Mahaffy translated into English. He was a great leader of speculative thought in Germany and through his works, in Europe generally. The position that he occupied in his country may not unappropriately be compared to the position in English philosophic thought of our day, occupied by the present Master of Balliol Dr. Edward Faird who is eleven years his junior. Fischer also wrote on literature several works of penetrating criticism, especially on Goethe and Lessing.

CHINA AND INDIAN OPIUM.

WE are glad to see that Mr. Morley has not succumbed to the clamour of the extremists in the decision as to India's share in dealing with the opium traffic of China. The attitude adopted is the only one that can be conceived to be just. If China is in earnest, then India will help, but India will follow, not lead, and any relaxation of the efforts of China to suppress opium will render nugatory the arrangements that have been made. These latter are simple in the extreme. The export of Indian opium to China is to be decreased by one-tenth annually, simultaneously with a decrease in native production up to 1910. Enhancement of the customs and likin on foreign opium, making its taxation equivalent to that on native opium is also permitted with special allowance for differences of value and quality. The further reduction of the poppy area in Bengal follows these proposals necessarily, for with a decreasing Chinese trade the present area will become too large. But all this depends "on proof that China has carried out its share of the arrangement." There is still doubt in many minds as to whether the prohibitory edict will ever come into full force, whether, even, it will continue in operative existence. It is impossible to see how far the officials are in earnest. Many of them have been working hard in carrying out the Dowager Empress' orders, for no doubt promotion lies that way, but from accounts in Chinese papers the letter of the edict is more strictly followed than the spirit, for while opium dens are closed, opium shops for the sale of the drug, to be consumed off the premises, are flourishing. In Shanghai there was some demonstration of force during June when the time for closing the dens drew near, and meetings were held advocating rowdyism with the hope of making the foreign Consuls protest against the action of the native officials. But the disturbance never came into actual existence, for it was clearly stated that any active opposition to the orders would entail a withdrawal of the offer to teach trades to or send home those thrown out of employment. A report submitted to the Shanghai Municipal Council contains some important observations. The number of houses in the Settlement is approximately 1,600, and the revenue derivable therefrom has been estimated for the current year at Tls. 75,500. No fair comparison, however, on the basis of numbers can be drawn between the luxurious business rendezvous, of which the houses in the Settlement to a large extent consist, with the often indescribably filthy dens in the city and outskirts. In a year of an unusually good crop, such as the present, both from the Hsuchoufu district whence the supplies of native opium, consumed in Shanghai, are principally drawn, and from the province of Szechuan, when, too, the Customs returns for imported opium show no sign of diminution, it appears improbable that any local measures for the suppression of opium-smoking will prove successful. Under these circumstances, says the report, the withdrawal of the licensing system, with its attendant supervision and control, is calculated to lead to an increase of crime and add to the difficulty and cost of policing the Settlement. What is true of Shanghai is equally true of other parts of China, and it is for this reason that doctors are expressed as to the ultimate efficacy of the dict

A PARLIAMENT OF PRANCING PRO-CONSULS.

"WHAT becomes of your burra sahibs and your burra memsahibs when they go home?" once asked a distinguished visitor of a Bombay lady. "They at once become very chhota," was the reply, "and are relegated to a tiny flat somewhere in Kensington, or a cottage in Bedford or Cheltenham." The reply was no more severe than true. Some of them like it and take obscurity "lying down." Lord Curzon, after being "the head of the Government" for a number of years also passed into obscurity but not without a struggle and as the time passed on his enforced leisure presses sorely upon him. In England, Lord Curzon is of no more account than John Smith, and his name does not spontaneously appear in print as often as that of the Chief of the Metropolitan Fire-Brigade. This does not please a man of Lord Curzon's calibre. So he complains that he belongs "to the class of retired pro-consuls for whom there is no place in the official life of the country. It is a prodigious mistake to make no further use of such officials. Why should not they serve," he asks, "on some form of Imperial Council and assist the Government by their valuable experience?" Why indeed? Why should a Lieutenant-Colonel who has been in command for five years be placed on the half pay or retired list? There are many conundrums of the kind to which a variety of answers—all true ones—might be offered. Lord Curzon has not thought of one. So as the Grocers' Company of which he first asked, cannot give the solution, he has now addressed the Westminster Gazette. In his letter he urges that the Colonial Office might have been saved unhappy misunderstandings, and even blunders had an advisory body of retired Colonial Governors been available for consultation by the Secretary of State. The influence of the India Council would, he said, be even greater than it is were the members not permitted to serve so long as to lose touch with India. Or, he might have added, had Lord Curzon been appointed President, with a casting vote, He also urges that the Defence committee would be immensely strengthened by the inclusion of a few men trained in Imperial questions and acquainted with the countries and problems which pass in review. The Defence Committee might become the nucleus of an Imperial Council comprising men like Lord Cromer and Lord Milner. And he might have added that India would be more secure and more satisfactorily governed if the Secretary of State, the India Office, the Government of India and, of course, Lord Kitchener, were swept out of existence and Lord Curzon installed in their stead. We are sorry for our late Viceroy, very sorry. He is making a bid, if he but knew it, for a permanency on the list of retired pro-consuls. If he but kept moderately quiet something might be found for him. But for a persistent and irresponsible agitator, nothing,

OUR BERLIN LETTER.

THE TURFAN FINDS.

Scandinavian Shipping.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)
BERLIN, JULY 12.

From the outskirts of the desert in Chinese Turkestan, most astonishing archæological finds in the sand-burried caves of Turfan have been brought to Berlin. The greatest surprise are the paintings in fresco style with which the walls of the excavated temples and palaces were covered. The colours are so well preserved as though the painter had just finished his work; innumerable, often life size, figures of men and animals, the bye-work of plants and ornamentations, and the symbolic embellishments give us a clear conception of an unknown period of flourishing culture in these regions and the tangible proof of a direct connection of the art of Eastern Asia with that of the Western community of Nations. Fortunately, so many writings in various languages were unearthed at the same time, that we can fix the origin of these paintings with sufficient accuracy.

The finds lead us back to the 7th, 8th and 9th centuries of our Era and represent the state of culture in these remote regions, before Mohamedanism got its complete superiority. It was a mixture of Buddhistic, Indian, New-Persian, Christian and Chinese accomplishments that we have before us, and from its study many a puzzle of the history of East-Asia art is at once solved. We may now follow in detail the gradual transition from the Hellenistic to the Chinese style. If we are struck at the great resemblance of many traits on these pictures with particularities of modern Japanese works of Art, the old supposition that the best sides of the decorative style of Japanese Art goes in the end back to Greek influences, is now fully substantiated.

Of the highest interest are the ethnological bearings of these pictures of gods, demons, budhas and saints, especially of the numerous portraits of kings, warriors, monks and devotees. Among them, we find many Aryans of the truest type, with blue or greenish eyes, high noses, blond beard and undulating hair. Thus the doubts of modern critics regarding the assertion of medieval Chinese geographers that nations of such description lived in the western outskirts of the Celestial Empire are set at rest. Of most imposing presence appear the New-Persian figures in their royal and warlike attire with their scalloped coats-of-mail and the inlaid silver of their sword belts. On the other hand, the Indian type of many figures is unmistakable, as is also the plain, somewhat stiff appearance of the Chinese personages. The ease and distinctness of the outlines is admirable, while the effect of shadow and the detail of the background is not so well cared for.

If we compare these pictures with the later works of Chinese, Korean and Japanese pictorial art, there is hardly any essential addition noticeable. On the contrary, since the 17th century, Chinese and Korean painting is loosing of its former excellence, while Japan in the period of its seclusion, carefully preserves its good tradition. The consequence is that in modern times the development of Eastern Art appears the more satisfactory the farther East we go, i. e., the more distant from the common origin in Chinese Turkestan.

In Turfan the period of decay commenced already in the 9th century. The mixture of Hellenistic, Buddhistic and Chinese cultures receded before the iconoclastic Mohammedanism that swayed over Persia, Northern India and Turkestan. Ever since, the East-Asian world of culture was separated from the influences of the West and underwent its transformations exclusively according to Chinese wants and ideals.

The discovery of these monuments of the flourishing period of Turkestan in the 7th and 8th centuries, is due to two expeditions of Professor Grunwedel and the 2 1/2 years' expedition of Herr von Lecoq. From a special fund, the German Emperor contributed £1,500 towards the expenses, the State of Prussia paying the remainder. The work of deciphering the excavated writings, partially in unknown languages, will occupy scholars for many years to come. The first publications of newly discovered Manichean texts and of some fragments in the formerly unknown Sogdic language by Professor F. W. K. Muller, of the Berlin Academy of Sciences, has made quite a sensation in the learned world.

SCANDINAVIAN SHIPPING.

A correspondent writes from Stockholm: Ever since the separation of Norway the policy of Sweden was to make herself, for overseas trading, independent of the Norwegian mercantile fleet that since the beginning of this century had shown such a marvellous development. As the greatest activity of Norwegian shipping during the Russo-Japanese War was directed to the Far East, it was an East-Asian shipping line that was first started in Sweden, with a view of competing with the Norwegians. The Swedish Parliament granted a subsidy for the newly founded Swedish-Asiatic Line, taking as a model the subvention paid to the Cunard Line by the English Government. It was therefore a loan of 2 million crowns in help for the purchase of steamers and an annual subsidy of 370,000 crowns for the East-Asian sailings that was granted. But despite these substantial grants, the Company found the risk too great, as the whole export of Sweden to the Far East amounts only to 50,000 tons yearly. It entered into combination with the Danish East-Asian Co., at Copenhagen, so that there is a Danish-Swedish East Asian service now. The Swedish Government did not object to this agreement with a Danish company. The Swedish policy of strengthening National lines at the expense of Norwegian competition is even more obvious from the latest subsidy granted to a Swedish-Argentinian Line. For the article of the agreement which prohibits the new line to touch any foreign European port is meant chiefly in regard with some Norwegian ports which the Company wished to use as ports of call. The answer of the Norwegian Government was to grant for three years an annual subsidy of 100,000 crowns to the firm of Mr. G. M. Bryde at Christiania for a regular line from Norway via Cuba, Mexico, Brasil to Argentina. In Denmark, this jealousy between the two sister Nations 'has now been' made use of for starting a combination of a Danish with a Norwegian line to Argentina. The most important Danish shipping company will try to oppose the Swedish-Argentinian Line by a new Danish-Norwegian-Argentinian service. It appears as though Denmark is making the best of the present situation.

GERMAN CABLE CONCESSIONS IN SPAIN.

With the same readiness with which the Spanish Government gave its consent ten years ago for the German Atlantic-Telegraph Company to lay a telegraphic cable from Emden to Vigo, another concession has just been granted to the same Company to connect Emden by another cable directly with Teneriffa. The concession lasts for fifty years. From Teneriffa, connection is planned with Buenos Ayres or some other point on the Argentinian coast. Another cable will be laid from Teneriffa to the German colonies of Togo, Cameroon and Luderitzbay in Africa. If inducement offers to make use of the right conceded to Germany at the Algeciras Conference, to erect a telegraphic station at some point of the Atlantic coast of Morocco, Teneriffa will also be the connecting station.

L. ASCH.

AFTER THE RAINS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—This morning, July 28th 1907, all the people in Thana ran out of their houses to gaze at a portent in the sky. Persons of all castes and occupations, especially astrologers and soothsayers, prophets and journalists, scribes and Parsees and others, were seen on the move, consulting differential calculus, Old Moore's Almanac, and other sacred and profane works. Was it an eclipse or an Aurora Borealis? Was it only the Hon. C. S. Rolls arriving in the country, or was it a golden letter à la Benares? None of all these things! 'Twas no less than the sun appearing among the clouds.—Yours, etc.,

BYCULLA CLUB DANCE.

Successful Function.

A LADY correspondent thus describes the Bachelors' Dance at the Byculla Club on Monday evening.—"There were, I should think, quite a hundred people present when we sat down to dinner, which was exceedingly nice and the G. I. P. Band played some really good music during dinner. But I cannot remember what they played. We were very short of ladies. At one table there were three ladies and nine men and I noticed the other tables had far more men than ladies. At several tables there were three men to one lady. Most of our youth and beauty had gone to Poona for Mrs. Richardson's dances and so men were short of dancers, but the bridge and billiard rooms were well patronised. However, it was awfully well done and I enjoyed it thoroughly. After dinner, which we had in the dining-room (afterwards ball room) because the verandahs were so damp, we all went and sat about until the tables were removed and matting taken up, etc., and then we danced hard until 12-15. The floor was a little heavy at first owing to not having been danced on for so long,—or the damp—but it was ripping at the end of the evening. They gave us two extras. The G. I. P. Band played again for the dance as well as for the dinner. They were put into the verandah and screened off by large palms, etc. They played in excellent time, until the last extra value which was not good.

There were some perfectly lovely frocks there, and I felt most horribly shabby in mine. However it was comfortable to dance in, being just the right dancing length. Mrs. Leslie had a beautiful gown of sapphire blue chiffon over white satin and trimmed with old lace. Mrs. Edwardes wore a white embroidered silk and a bunch of blue flowers in the bodice; Mrs. Harter white taffeta silk with a dark red rose in the bodic Mrs. St. John Graham looked nice in emerald gr velvet and wore a nice necklace of emeralds. Mr. Lambert was in white silk trimmed with pink, wh Miss Wallis looked very sweet in a white silk ev gown. Mrs. Raikes had a lovely gown of tur coloured satin. Mrs. Dunn, who danced the whole evening, was in a flowered taffe silk robe. Mrs. Quicke looked well in a real smart white satin frock. Mrs. Russell was handsomely attired, and Miss Russell wore a gol sequin net over white silk, and a white ostrich feather in her hair. Miss Fraser was in a white brocaded silk frock. Mrs. Hepper had a charming frock of hand-painted net trimmed with pink satin. Mrs. Fosbery wore white satin. Mrs. Stree had a very striking black and white frock with long white osprey in her hair. Mrs. Vlasto looked very sweet and nice in a pink satin frock trimmed with black lace. Miss Prothero really looked extremely well in a short dancing frock of white net over white silk and had some very becomingly arranged grapes in her hair. Mrs. A. M. Jackson was in pink satin. I cannot remember any more.

The dance finished at 12-15 and then I saw one or two supper tables besides our own. Some people sat so late I thought they would be turned out, or swept up with the crumbs next morning. It was a ripping dance, awfully well done, but of course as it was so wet, there were no "Kala Juggas" (or whatever they are called). We all sat about in the verandahs. They were very good in bringing round lots of whisky and soda and lemonade between each dance, and not the horrid claret cup one so often has at a dance. It was a thirsty night, and so, even I appreciated soda-water between dances, a thing I never do as a rule.

It was nearly very sporting of the bachelors of the Club to give us so delightful an evening.

I enclose dance programme:—

THE SITUATION IN KHANDESH.

Bhils and Liquor.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)
DHULIA, JULY 28.

THE situation in Khandesh looked extremely critical until last Monday, the 22nd instant, when rain began to fall and it has continued to fall ever since to the intense satisfaction of the cultivator and anxious Government officials. Unlike Poona and Bombay and other parts of the Presidency where abnormally heavy falls of rain have been registered, the downpours here have been light and regular, fully befitting the conditions required for agriculture. Messrs. Ralli Bros. and Messrs. Volkart Bros. who have large agencies here, are said now to look forward to the cotton crop with large expectations. Mr. Morison, the Abkari Commissioner and now acting Member of Council, visited Dhulia last week to inspect the Distillery and was the guest of our popular Collector and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ghosal. The Distillery is one of the largest in the Presidency. The revenue from Mhoura spirit which, until two or three years ago, was but four lakhs of rupees per annum in Khandesh, has now risen to about twelve lakhs. Owing to a change in the system it is said Government intend giving out contracts. It was the practice formerly to employ one contractor for the whole district, whereas now each Taluka almost possesses its own liquor contractor. The price, too, of Mhoura spirit which used to be about one rupee per bottle, has now dropped to three annas, resulting in the illicit distillation of liquor being rare. Information to hand shows that whereas 400 to 450 prosecutions on account of illicit distillation occurred before, there are but a dozen or so a year, now. But the cheapening of Mhoura spirit has probably been the direct cause of its increased consumption, resulting in more drunkenness being prevalent and liquor contractors also are accused of offering all sorts of inducements to the poor Bhils to drink in order to swell their receipts.

It seems that out of every rupee earned, the unfortunate Bhil spends twelve annas in Mhoura liquor. Children of eight and ten years, who earn copper, rush first to the liquor shop. In consequence of all this traffic in drink, the Bhil especially has a very emaciated and dissolute appearance, and it is not an uncommon sight to see him rolling home to his village of an evening. One may as well try like Mrs. Partington, to keep back the ocean with a broom as attempt to suppress the drink traffic by abolishing the present Abkari system. It will pass the wit of man to devise a remedy for the unsatisfactory condition of things. What appears to be the most effectual method of checking the evil would seem to be to cut down and destroy the after-growth of every Mhoura tree in the Presidency. But here again arises another difficulty: Mhoura flowers are a valuable article of diet for many of the poorer classes, and they form also an excellent cattle food; and the oil manufactured from the seeds is also used as an article of domestic consumption, while merchants, export the seeds largely to Europe. As so many other large interests are at stake, therefore little likelihood seems to exist of any action for exterminating the Mhoura tree being taken in the manner suggested.

Dhulia now no longer possesses the importance it did in the time of Mr. Lionel Ashburner and "Raja" Propert. Since the subdivision of the Khandesh District into two Collectorates, Julgaon is the headquarters of East Khandesh, with Mr. Simcox in charge, while Dhulia is the headquarters of West Khandesh, with Mr. Ghosal as Collector. What strikes one most on arrival in Khandesh is the atmosphere of comparative prosperity which seems to prevail all over it, mainly due to the handsome returns obtained by the ryot from cotton which is now being grown everywhere: even in the The western parts where formerly it was unknown, since introduction of the Tapti Valley Rail the condi- rily responsible for the improvement the Railway tion of things as also the exten is understood from Chaliagaon to Dhulia ber. INDIAN OPIUM AND CHINA.

RESULT OF THE NEGOTIATIONS.

Policy of Reduction.

GUARANTEE OF EARNESTNESS WANTED.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, JULY 29.

Mr. Morley, in reply to Mr. Henry Wilson, said that after consulting with the Indian Government, they had informed China—

1. That they would accept, in principle, the proposal to diminish the import of Indian Opium to China by one-tenth annually, simultaneously with an equal decrease in native production to 1910, and would continue the reduction at the same rate thereafter on proof that China had carried out its share of the arrangement.

2. They would not object to a Chinese official being stationed at Calcutta, provided that he had no powers of interference.

3. They were prepared to assent to the enhancement of the customs and likin on foreign opium, making its taxation equivalent to the taxation actually levied on Native opium—differences of value and quality being considered.

Further reductions of the poppy area in Bengal and of the chests of Bengal opium fixed for sale would be made after 1907, provided that the proposed arrangement with China became operative.

INDIANS IN THE TRANSVAAL.

The Question of Identification.

FINGER-PRINTS NOT OBJECTIONABLE.

LONDON, JULY 29.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Winston Churchill informed Sir W. Bull that the Transvaal Government, after careful consideration of the representations that had been made, and the investigation of other systems of identification, had decided that there was no alternative to finger-print impressions. The Transvaal Government did not admit that these involved degrading and vexatious indignities to Indians.

"While Lord Elgin regrets the inability of the Transvaal to make any concession," said Mr. Churchill, "he does not regard this highly scientific method of identification as objectionable in itself, and he is unable to press the Transvaal further in the matter."

NONCONFORMIST MAHOMEDAN MOSQUE.

Application for Erection Refused.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LAHORE, JULY 30.

A case of considerable regarding the interest, building of a new Mosque to which almost all the Muhammadan Adjumans and a majority of other Muhammadan inhabitants of Lahore were opposed, was heard by Mr. R.A. Maut, Deputy Commissioner and President of the Lahore Municipal Committee.

After hearing both sides, the Deputy Commissioner passed the following order in regard to the application of Muhammad Chittoo for permission to build a new Mosque in the Sirianwala Bazar :—

"Ihave heard both sides and have considered the case carefully. Muhammad Chittoo applies for permission to build a Mosque in the Sirianwala Bazar. He is a member of a small sect of Muhammadan Nonconformists, called Ahl-i-Koran, which is opposed to the tenets of all other sections of the Muhammadan community. He proposes to build a Mosque in a crowded part of the town where his followers are in a very small minority, and the proposal is bitterly opposed by nearly all the Muhammadan residents in the mohalla.

"After making all allowances for the rights of minorities and for the right of all religious denominations to equal toleration and protection under the British Government, I think that this is a case in which the wishes of the overwhelming majority must prevail. If an Ahl-i-Koran Mosque is built in this locality it will undoubtedly give rise to bitter disputes and in all probability to a breach of the peace. The power of forbidding the erection of buildings is given to the Committee for sanitary and other purposes, and the peace and quiet of the neighbours is, I think, one of the matters which may properly be taken into consideration. On this ground I think that the application must be refused."

THE ARBUTHNOT FAILURE.

Macfadyen's Administrator's Claim.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MADRAS, JULY 30.

To-day in the Madras High Court before Mr. Justice Boddam, the Administrator-General of Madras as administrator of the property and credits of Macfadyen, deceased, has brought a suit against the Official Assignee of Madras as assignee of the real personal estate and effects of Sir George Arbuthnot, an insolvent debtor. The plaintiff filed a lengthy plaint and prayed first that it be declared that plaintiff as representative of the said Macfadyen, deceased, is entitled to half the share in all Indian assets of the late firm of Arbuthnot and Company ; secondly that an account be taken of what assets in which estate of late P. Macfadyen is entitled to the half share consist and that defendant be directed to put plaintiff in possession of half the share of such of the said assets as may be ascertained to be in his possession ; thirdly, that plaintiff may be granted such further relief as to the Court may seem fit, Plaintiff argues that Macfadyen and Sir George Arbuthnot were solely entitled to the property of the firm, J. M. Young being the only salaried partner with no claim on the assets of the firm. He claims Macfadyen was therefore entitled to half of the firm's assets, and asks that account be taken and half the property handed to him as administrator of deceased's estate.

The Official Assignee argues that the plaintiff is only entitled to half of the property that may remain after creditors of the insolvent firm have been paid ; that further under the Bankruptcy proceedings in England to which the Madras Insolvency proceedings are auxiliary the property of the deceased was vested in the Official Assignee and not in the Administrator-General.

INDIAN RAILWAY COMMITTEE.

Evidence of the Hon. Mr. Webb.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

KARACHI, JULY 30.

The London correspondent of the Sind Gazette, cabling on 29th instant, says :—

The Hon'ble Mr. De P. Webb, Chairman, Karachi Chamber of Commerce gave evidence on 25th instant at the India Office before the Indian Railway Committee. Mr. Webb urged that the amounts allotted by the Government in recent years for Railway construction and equipment in India had been seriously inadequate for the needs of the country and for the development of its trade. Calcutta, Bombay and Karachi experiences were quoted and special stress was laid on the deficiencies of the North-Western Railway which had been shamefully starved for funds in the post with the result that the Punjab wheat trade was now crippled and progress seriously checked. Mr. Webb animadverted on the policy of discouraging private railway enterprise in undertaking railway developments which the Government were unable themselves to tackle, and strongly condemned the present system of finance in India where by railway management and construction were treated in the same way as other departments of Government, as the railways themselves are regarded as sources of imperial revenue instead of as commercial enterprises requiring vigorous development according to the commercial needs and standards.

NEW GURKHA BATTALIONS.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

ALLAHABAD, JULY 30.

Although no definite decision has yet been given, it is probable when the two new half-battalions which are now bring raised, one for each wing of what has hitherto been the 2/10th Gurkha Rifles, the two completed corps will become the 1st and 2nd Battalions of the 7th Gurkhas. The existing unit bearing that designation will most probably become the 2nd Battalion of the 7th Gurkha Rifles.

COLONEL MAXSE, proposing the toast of the French President at the banquet given by Boulogne to the band of the Coldstream Guards, said :—"Confucius, the author of the 'Maxims of War,' which even to this day form part of the regulations of the Chinese army, puts his first maxim in these terms: 'You should diffuse in the camp of your enemy the most beautiful musical sounds in order to soften his heart.' This is a very pleasant way of winning a battle, and it may be hoped that the sweet accents of the bands of the Garde Republicaine and the Coldstream Guards playing together will have the effect of softening the hearts of their enemies. Perhaps the mayor will submit this pacific solution of so many European difficulties to The Hague Conference."

THE NEW INDIAN "PENNY."

HOW IT WILL BE CIRCULATED THROUGHOUT HINDUSTAN.

The Currencies of Britain and India.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS.

There is not a house in Bombay which will not have a little sensation of its own to-morrow, when the first specimens of the bright new nickel anna are brought beneath its roof. It is not only that the coin is a very important one, and that it is destined to be the handy "penny" of Hindustan, but it is an exquisitely pretty specimen of the mintsman's art, and the only coin with an undulating edge in the world. It is also the only coin in the Indian Empire which is made of nickel.

The appearance of a coin of an entirely new value, metal, or device, is always a universal subject of conversation and conjecture within the boundaries of the territory where it is current, and no coin has ever been minted in India which has caused more speculation and admiration than will the new anna this week-end. Had it been officially issued on the "first ultimo" instead of the "first proximo," it would have appeared on an anniversary which will always be memorable in the annals of numismatics—the ninetieth anniversary of the issue of the popular Sovereign, or twenty-shilling piece, which was proclaimed current coin from the new Mint on Tower Hill on the 1st July 1817, and which, three-quarters of a century later, was proclaimed good change for fifteen rupees within this land of India.

There is no country in the world so interesting to the numismatist as India. The marvellous infinity of the coinage of this country is a source of perpetual delight to the collector. Between the simple pice and the old gold mohur, there are hundreds of different mintings, some for quite small Native States. There are no coins made more perfectly than the rupee issued from the Mint of Bombay ; and yet to this day coins—or coined nuggets—are made by the hill tribes in certain parts of India which are produced in exactly the same way that our Saxon forefathers made their coins before the modern artistic idea of a token, with a wreath of bays and the portrait in relief of the monarch, was introduced by the Greeks and Romans. The crudest coins made in any civilised part of the world are the "dubs" of Hyderabad, which continued to be made right up to the dawn of the twentieth century.

In another sense India is numismatically analogous to England in mediæval times. Mints—of sorts!—can be found all over this country, just as they could in England in Saxon and Norman times, when every important town minted its own currency. Now the new Mint on Tower Hill supplies the whole of the British Empire with its currency (except Australia), so that in addition to the gold, silver, and bronze coins of England, the London Mint turns out all sorts of other coins, amongst them gold coins of the value of two dollars for Newfoundland, and silver coins of the value of fifty, twenty-five, twenty, ten and five cents for the same ancient Colony. The Mint also sends bronze pence and half-pence of a special design to Jersey and one or two other small places. For the currency of the Indian Empire the mints of Calcutta and Bombay suffice.

Now as to the new Indian penny. It will not be the only nickel coin with the effigy of King Edward upon it, as the pence, half-pence and farthings of the West Indies are of the new metal. It is to be hoped that no mistake will be discovered in the design such as an error in the statement of the value of the coin on the reverse side in the Urdu, Nagri, Bengali or Telugu versions, as such an error might cause the issue to be withdrawn from circulation. Such things are not unknown at the London Mint.

Twenty years ago the late Sir Edgar Boehm designed a series of Jubilee Coins, those in which the Queen first appeared as a lady no longer in her teens. But the designer forgot to put the value of the coin upon the six-penny piece, with the result that thousands of the bright new silver "tanners" were heavily gilt and palmed off on to bar-maids and billiard markers as new Jubilee half sovereigns. The result was that three weeks after the issue of the Jubilee series of coins—a complete set of which is kept in the Bombay Mint—the sixpenny piece was withdrawn from circulation ; and so greatly has the coin now enhanced in value that it is said the Jubilee half sovereign is sometimes coated with silver and sold to coin-collectors as a "Jubilee sixpence!"

This Sir Edgar Boehm it was who modelled the colossal equestrian statue of the King which stands at the corner of the Crescent in Bombay. Sir Edgar was a great artist, but he was also a pronounced flatterer of Royalty, in consideration of which the late Queen ordered statues of nearly all the members of her family from him. But Sir Edgar overdid himself when it came to designing the Jubilee coins. The Queen, during the fifty years of her reign, had been represented on the coins of the realm as a slim young girl of eighteen—in fact, as she really was at the time of her accession in 1837. But by 1887 she had become a very stout old lady, the grandmama of many, and what Lord Byron would have called "dumpy." Sir Edgar Boehm, on being commissioned to design a new set of coins in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee was afraid to represent Her Majesty as she was, but he was compelled to make her appear to be a widow no longer in her heyday. This he did, but he preserved the rest of the characteristics of the coin of 1837, with the result that the effigy of Her Majesty on the coins of 1887 was that of a stout old dame of seventy with the long slim neck of a debutante in her teens—an utterly ridiculous picture which brought upon Sir Edgar merciless ridicule from all parts of the Empire.

Occasion was taken soon after to replace this issue by another set of coins and notwithstanding that the effigy of the Queen shows her as having no neck to speak of, it was voted a really excellent portrait of Her Majesty. For this the present President of the Royal Academy was responsible. It is worth adding that only two Hungarians ever became Royal Academicians—Sir Edgar Boehm and Sir Hubert Herkomer—and curiously enough, they are both represented by works in this City.—Sir Edgar Boehm by the King's Statue and Sir Hubert Herkomer by the portrait of Sir William Wedderburn in the Presidency Association's rooms.

There is no fear of there being any mistake about the value of the new nickel anna, as the reverse side of the coin bears a large figure "1" with the word anna on either side. The idea has been taken from the "ONE 1 PICE" on the reverse side of the East African Protectorate's coin of that value, while the obverse side of the coin showing, the portrait of the King, is an exact reproduction of the Straits Settlement ten cent piece.

To-morrow morning no less than two millions of new nickel annas will be in the banks and treasuries and pay offices of India awaiting the requirements of the public. Already ten thousand rupees worth of the new shiny annas have been sent by rail to Madras and fifteen thousand rupees worth to Calcutta. Bombay—or the banks—have taken many thousands of the new coins, while the Currency Office is piling up a stock at the rate of fifty thousand a day. Lahore and Allahabad have each taken Rs. 7,500 worth and Nagpur Rs. 5,000. Lots of people are talking of sending some of the new coins home to Europe as curiosities to their friends; and in England, at any rate, the coin will arouse much interest, as nickel coins, and coins with undulating edges are unknown there.

In one respect the coin is destined to have a considerable effect upon the finances of the Europeans in India. It will become the general medium for the tip. The coin itself will probably soon become known as "the Tip." At present when a railway station coolie transfers your handbag to the gharry waiting opposite the train, he gets 2 annas or 4 annas for his labour. A railway porter in England for the same job gets a threepenny bit. The coolie, therefore, relatively to his wants, gets about three times as much as the British porter. That is the fault of the present awkward Indian coinage. But, to-morrow, the new anna will be available for railway coolies and others of the fraternity that lives on tips. It may, at a moderate computation, be safely conjectured that a sum of £10 a day will be saved to the Europeans in Bombay by the use of the new coin. The Hotel boys will probably wear a worried look by the end of next week.

GOLF.

Notes from Nasik.

Nasik is now at its best. The south-west winds, cool as the cheek of health, have brought copious rains, and the world has put on her brightest garment of green. Day after day the rain clouds blot out the hills which guard the far horizon, and pour abundant moisture on the rich brown soil, so that the husbandmen following their ploughs sing as they work, rejoicing that the rivers of God are full of water. Though the rains have come in late, Nasik has already had half it normal rainfall, and the golf links, which, three weeks ago were brown and bare, are already beginning to be somewhat overgrown with weed if not always with grass. In another week the greens will be opened to play. Three of them are in process of being re-turfed and should be a vast improvement on the rough greens of former years. The Quarry-hole in particular, now it has some good turf on it, will alone make the round infinitely more enjoyable. I know of nothing more annoying among the many annoyances of golf than to pitch a good shot near the flag at a short hole and count on a certain three and then be deprived of it by a bad green. The green at the Quarry-hole will, in future, it is to be hoped, be a haven of rest instead of a nightmare. Another and a long-needed improvement in the links is the addition of several bunkers. Hitherto, they have been as scarce as straight drives on a windy day, but now the slicer or the puller must beware, for there are numerous traps set for him. There are 2 bunkers to catch a sliced ball from the second tee,—or if they don't "catch" it, they will have a moral effect on the player about to drive. Then the bunker which guard the "Old home" green which now does duty for the 3rd and 14th greens, has been widened and raised, and two other bunkers have been built to the left of it to prevent pawky players from creeping round it. The larger of these two bunkers is at right angles across the line to the 4th hole and will punish a "topped" ball from the tee. At the 5th hole,—the new punch bowl—the old bunker, which ran diagonally across the line to the hole just in front of the green, has been moved away to the left, to catch the sliced tee shot which is so common a fault here. The 6th green has been protected with two pot bunkers, on the right and left of the line to the hole. There are two large bunkers short of the hillock on the way to the 7th—the "long" hole—where so many pulled tee shots have formerly been driven with impunity. The short hole (the 8th) bristles with ugly little bunkers, and the big bunker in front of the 9th is in course of being deepened. Both the Quarry and Pipul tree greens are now protected; so also are "Port Arthur," and the "Gymkhana" greens. A welcome change has been made in the tee shots for the 3rd and 14th holes. Both are now played from the north of the Trimbuk Road. From the 3rd a brassy shot will reach the green; from the 14th, a full drive will barely reach the bunker. The Idgah tee has been put back 30 yards, and tee shots for the 4th and 9th holes will also be made longer. The last hole is now to the west of the Club House, and a new green has been made for it—the tee remaining where it was last year. This arrangement is a great improvement. The 18th hole last year was a blot upon the excellency of the links.

Rovers got away and Brown sent in finely, across to Evans but Rose cleared his kick out. Temp'eton found touch. Rovers pressed but found Pooler all there. Smart exchanges took place in front of the Y M C A goal but nothing resulted the players slippine badly, Brown got away again but Robotham kicked well away Chapman drove off Y M C A attacks twice with well placed kicks and from the last the Rovers attained a corner off Robotham. Lay shot wide. Munn then tested Rose, who saved and Brewin dribbled down field only to find Hotz too good for him. Scrambling play followed in midfield the ball being very heavy and the players fell all over the field in their attempts to kick, Y M C A kicked behind and from the kick of the Rovers started pressing, but Pooler saved. Pretty dribbling by Y. M. C. A. forwards resulted in Brewin sending in to Street, who was forced to concede a corner. Pooler from the scramble shot over. The Rovers now attacked but Kelly and Robotham were very sound. Street was called to clear from a free and from a free against the Rovers directly after, Roberts sent behind. Street was tried twice in succession by very difficult shots, but he was safe and got both away, Brown the Rovers' Right went away on his own and centered beautifully but Robotham sent into touch. From midfield play, Pooler gave over to Roberts, who scored the Y. M. C. A. second goal with a fine shot. Hotz was prominent with fine kicking and from an exchange of kicks Lay came away and scored for the Rovers, giving Rose no chance, from the rebound of the ball off him. Half time came with :—

Y. M. C. A. ..... 2 Goals,
Rovers..... 1 Goal.

From the half time kick off, the Rovers' forwards were very fast on the ball and had distinct hard luck in not scoring. Brown shot in but Rose had to give a corner. He saved the kick in fine style and Y. M. C. A. got away down field. It was their turn now and from a drive across from Candy Brewin scored, with a shot Street could not reach. The Rovers now retaliated with a combined run of passing and Glover scored with a clinking shot. A miskick by Hotz nearly let in the Y. M. C. A. and then Scrofton sent away the Rovers forwards but a free enabled the Y. M. C. A. to stem the attack. From this the Rovers had very rough luck in not scoring, Evans shooting just wide twice. Roberts came away with a dribble but was pulled up by Chapman. Long kicking between the backs ended in the ball going behind. The Rovers forwards tested Rose but he got the ball away safely, a free kick against the Rovers was given but the ball went behind, Play was in Midfield when the whistle went leaving the Y. M. C. BOMBAY UNIVERSITY SENATE.

LAST evening a well-attended meeting of the Senate of the Bombay University was held in the Sir Cowasjee Jehangir Hall of the University, the Hon. Mr. F. G. Selby, the Vice-Chancellor, presiding.

A MEDICAL SCHOLARSHIP.

The Senate considered an offer of Rs. 10,000 in 3 per cent. Government paper from the widow and sons of the late Dr. Tribhowandas Motichand Shah for the foundation of a medical Scholarship bearing his name.

Lieutenant Colonel H. P. Dimmock moved the acceptance of the offer with the best thanks of the Senate, and proposed the adoption of certain regulations for the award of the scholarship. One of the regulations iprovided that a scholarship to be called "The Dr. Tribhowandas Motichand Shah Scholarship," of the value of the annual income of the Fund and tenable for five years, shall be awarded, whenever vacant, by the Syndicate, to the Jain Candidate, or in the absence of a Jain to the Hindu Candidate, who passes the Previous Examination of this University, or any other Examination which may in future be recognised as the Preliminary Examination for the M. B., B. S. Degrees, with the highest number of marks, and has not been awarded any other University Scholarship, on condition that he studies continuously at a College or Institution affiliated to the University and recognised for the purposes of the M. B., B. S. Degrees.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Chandavarkar seconded the proposition which was agreed to.

THE DEGREES OF M. D. AND. M. S.

Consideration was given to the desirability of revising the regulations for the M. D. and M. S. examinations.

Lieutenant Colonel H. P. Dimmock moved that as recommended by the Faculty of Medicine and the Syndicate, the existing regulations for the M. D. and M. S. Examinations remain in force up to 1910, and that the following revised regulations come into force thereafter :—The Examination will be held annually at Bombay, commencing on the fourth Monday in November. The Examination is open to those who have passed the M. B., B. S. Degrees Examination of the University of Bombay or of any University recognised by this University, and to the Licentiates of Medicine and Surgery of this University only. No Candidate will be admitted to this examination unless he produces a certificate showing that—(i) he having passed the L. M. examination, or having passed the L. M. & S. Examination before the year 1912, or having passed the M.B.,B.S. Degrees examination, has been engaged in not less than five years' continuous practice of the medical profession subsequent to his taking the L.M. or L.M. and S. degree, or the M.B., B.S. degrees, as the case may be, and that he has been engaged for not less than a year in the post-graduate study of the particular branch in which he offers the examination, at a recognised Hospital or Institute, or (ii) he, after his taking the M.B.,B.S. degrees, or being a graduate in Arts or Science of this University or a University recognised by this University, has taken a First Class at the L.M. or L.M. and S. Examination.

Col. Dimmock said the present regulations were passed by the Senate rather hurriedly, and allowed rather an easy admission to the higher degree of M. D. It was thought desirable by the Faculty of Medicine to further consider the regulations, and the result of their deliberations was that the period of qualification for admission to the M. D. and M. S. degrees, after taking the L. M. and S. or the M. B.,B S. degrees was proposed to be increased from three to five years

Dr. Sorab Nariman seconded the proposition.

Sir Bhalchandra Krishna submitted no good reason had been shown to increase the period of qualification from three to five years. He thought it would be much better to wait for threeiyears, and if from experience they found that a change was necessary in their present regulations, they could consider the matter hereafter. If the Senate, however, were not prepared to reject Col. Dimmock's proposition altogether, he asked them to retain the present period of three years. Sir Bhalchandra moved an amendment accordingly.

Dr. Kher seconded the amendment.

Dr. Arthur Powell was of opinion that it was essential that the regulations should be amended now. By doing that the students would be in a position to know when they would be qualified for the M.D. degree and on what terms they would be able to get that degree. The reason, which induced the faculty of Medicine to propose an increase of two years in the period of qualification, was that they considered that the M. D. degree was not only a qualifying degree, but it was a degree which carried with it a considerable amount of standing and honour.

Major A. Street said that originally a proposal for fixing the period of qualification at ten years was brought before the Faculty of Medicine and when the period was brought down to five years Sir Bhalchandra agreed to that compromise.

Dr. N. F. Surveyor was in favour of the proposition. He thought the change was absolutely necessary. He himself was in favour of raising the period to ten or even fifteen years in the case of those aspirants for the M. D. degree who did not put their feet in the hospital, after passing out of the Medical College. It was impossible to expect a man to get the M. D. or M. S. degree after three years if he did not keep himself in touch with the hospital work.

Dr. Rao considered a three years' qualification quite sufficient. It was urged in the Faculty that by making this condition prohibitive, those who were not able to obtain the M. D. degree on such terms were tempted to go to the Continent and after a three-monthly or six-monthly trip came out as an M. D. of some European University.

Mr. D. G. Padhye and Shams-ul-Ulma J. J. Modi supported the amendment. Mr. Modi urged that they had not made their M. D. degree in any way cheap in the past and that was evident from the fact that only half a dozen people in all had obtained that degree. Under the circumstances he thought no case had been made out to make the rules stricter.

The amendment was put to the vote and lost by 23 votes against 24. The proposition was then carried by 31 votes against 23.

EXAMINATIONS IN ENGINEERING.

On the motion of Major W. V. Scadamore, the revised regulations for the examinations in Engineering which are to come into force in November, 1908, were adopted.

This concluded the business before the Senate.

KHAN BAHADUR B. B. PATEL MEMORIAL FUND.

The fund raised for a memorial of Khan Bahadur Bomonjé Byramjee Patel, a well-known author and historian of the Parsees, now amounts to Rs. 8,161-12-11 ; and a meeting of the subscribers was held on Monday in the Bai Bhikaeejee Bengalee School, under the presidency of Mr. Merwanjee Muncherjee Cama, to consider how the fund should be utilised. It was remarked at the meeting that, in addition to writing the valuable work entitled the "Prsee Prakash," the Khan Bahadur has rendered many valuable services to his community in various capacities ; and it was befitting that his name should be commemorated among his co-religionists.

After various suggestions had been made, the meeting resolved by a majority of votes, on the motion of Mr. Shapurjee Byramjee Katrak, that the memorial fund be kept open until the subscriptions amounted to Rs. 10,000; that the amount be then made over to the Zoroastrian Buildings Association on the understanding that a building be erected bearing the name of Khan Bahadur Bemonjee Byramjee Patal; that the surplus rents of the block be made over to the trustees of the Parsee Punchayet funds with a request that, after the surplus rents had accumulated for five or seven years, the total sum be applied to a continuance of Mr. Patel's work of writing a history of the Parsees, or in some manner which might throw additional light on the history of the Parsees ; or, if practicable, for both the above purposes. On the motion of Mr. Sorabjee Eduljee Warden, it was resolved that a committee, consisting of the following gentlemen, be appointed to carry into effect the above mentioned objects : Messrs. Oursetjee Rustomjee Cama, Hormusjee Muncherjee Cama, Sorabjee Eduljee Warden, Jivanjee Jamsetjee Mody, D. R. Chichgar, Merwanjee Muncherjee Cama, Framjee Rustomjee Joshi, Shapurjee Byramjee Katrak, Dr. Jehangir J. Lilaconalla, Dr. Jehangir Daji, Dr. Dinshaw Bomanjee Master and Dr. B. S. Shroff. The proceedings terminated with a note of thanks to the chairman.

SOME of Professor Petrie's latest "finds" made at the necropolis at Gizeh, to the south of the Great Pyramid, are now to be seen at University College. Among them are little clay models of houses which were placed beside the tombs so that the ghost or spirit might have a dwelling similar to that he occupied on earth. Two funeral boats were found. One is being rowed down the Nile, the sail being furled and packed on deck. The other is going up stream, and the sailors are hoisting the sail. The steersman and look-out are in their places, and there is a cabin on deck, in which the captain is seated. Along with these boats were found small statuettes of the two brothers to whom the tomb belonged, and also figures of servants bearing baskets of bread and cakes.

THE NATIVE PRES

BY THE WAY.

THE LATE SIR WILLIAM BROADBENT.

Sir William Broadbent was one of our most eminent and representative "medicine men." Physician-in-Ordinary to the King and Prince of Wales, as he was also to the late Queen, he had filled practically all the important public positions to which his profession calls its leaders. Sir William, in his early days, studied in Paris, among various other places, and spoke French fluently. From the extent and diversity of his medical knowledge, Sir William was called "a very general specialist," and since the days when he first attracted note by his investigations in the physiology of the nervous system, he never ceased learning. Sir William was with the King and Queen during their cruel trial over the death of the Duke of Clarence; and had the happiness to see his skill crowned with success, when the Prince of Wales, as he now is, was laid low with typhoid fever, some thirteen years ago, on which occasion he received his baronetcy in recognition of his skill and devotion.

BRINGING A SECOUNDREL TO JUSTICE.

An interesting episode of a different kind in Sir William's career was his connexion with one of the greatest criminals of recent times, the infamous Neill Cream, the Lambeth poisoner, whom he helped to bring to Justice. Sir William received a blackmailing letter from this scoundrel, which he handed over to the police. A similar letter had been addressed to another doctor, and a comparison of the two missives enabled the police to get on the criminal's track. Sir William may be remembered also as having objected to being cartooned in Vanity Fair. "I am told," he wrote to the Lancet that this is a distinction. If so, it is one which I do not appreciate or covet, and I should like the profession to know that it is entirely unauthorised. Sir William in this showed himself rather lacking in a sense of humour.

THE KING'S FIRST VISIT TO IRELAND.

King Edward's visit to Ireland has no doubt brought back the memory of his first trip across the Irish Sea, now nearly sixty years ago, and of an amusing, if rather embarrassing, incident which marked his greeting. It was in the summer of 1848 that the Prince, then a "dear little fellow" of six, accompanied his parents in the "Victoria and Albert," and landed at Queenstown, where a splendid ovation awaited them. "Little Princey," as Lady Lyttelton used to call him, so fascinated one Irishwoman that she forced her way through the crowd, seized him in her arms, gave him a good hug, and called him "darlint," much to the amusement of his Royal mother and to the consternation of the onlookers. Miss Alcott described the Prince at this time as "a yellow-haired laddie, very like his mother. Fanny, W., and I nodded and waved as he passed, and he openly winked his boyish eye at us; for Fanny, with her yellow curls and wild waving, looked rather rowdy, and the poor little Prince wanted some fun."

JOHN CALVIN'S BIRTHDAY.

The recurrence of the natal day of John Calvin recalls the fact that two years hence will fall the 400th anniversary of the birthday of the great Reformer. Such a notable event in the history of Protestantism will certainly not be allowed to pass unmarked. Already the Reformed Churches in Germany have entered upon discussion as to how best to make the occasion a memorable one. The erection of a great monument to Calvin and the establishment of an endowment fund for the support of the Reformed Churches throughout the country are the suggestions so far put forward.

"STILL CALLING."

Rev. Canon Horsley writes: "As you say, 'Cuckoos are still calling.' I heard a very persistent one at Chesham last Saturday. But have people noticed generally that 'in June he alters his tune' seems not to have been the rule this year? All through June, in the Bernese Oberland, I heard no breaking of the cry, nor was there any last Saturday."

SIGNS OF PROGRESS.

Where spades grow bright, and idle swords grow dull;
Where gaols are empty, and where barns are full;
Where field-paths are with frequent feet outworn;
Law-court yards weedy, silent and forlorn;
Where doctors foot it, and where farmers ride;
Where age abounds, and youth is multiplied;
Where poisonous drinks are chased from every place;
Where opium's curse no longer leaves a trace;
Where these signs are, they clearly indicate
A happy people and a well-ruled State.

BIRDS FROM NEW GUINEA.

Mr. Walter Goodfellow, the well-known Ornithologist and Zoological Explorer, has recently returned to this country with a fine collection of birds from New Guinea. After his explorations in Central Formosa, we gather from the "Scotsman," Mr Goodfellow proceeded to the Humboldt's Bay, on the north coast of New Guinea, mainly with the object of obtaining living examples of birds of Paradise. The Natives, however, proved to be but poor bird-catchers and were not very friendly. After leaving North-West New Guinea, he visited the Aru Islands and remained there four months, during which time he procured many specimens of the king bird of Paradise, a species which is being rapidly exterminated. At Manekwarri, formerly called Doreh, in North New Guinea, Mr. Goodfellow was shown the spot where Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace's house stood, when the latter collected over fifty years ago.

RAILWAY GUARD AND J. P.

Mr. James Reed Bell, J. P., of Blaydon-on-Tyne, is the first railway guard to be raised to the magisterial bench. He is, we learn from the Methodist Times, a guard on the North-Eastern Railway, and is a member of the Wesleyan Church at Blaydon. Mr. Bell holds a prominent position in the Amalgamated Railway Servants' Society, and has been a delegate to their Annual Congress, General Auditor for three years, and National Council Representative for two years, and is now National President of that Association. He presided at the Birmingham Conference in November of last year, and also at the recent momentous Conference held in the same place.

THE STORY OF A CAXTON.

In the current month's "Wesleyan Church Record" is a paper by Mr. William Andrews, of the Hull Royal Institution, on "Curiosities of Book Collecting," in which he tells again the story of the unearthing of a Caxton at Thorneck Hall, Lincolnshire. The butler was entrusted with the work of weeding out the superfluous books. A perfect copy of Dame Juliana Berner's "Boke of St. Albans" (1486) was thrown carelessly aside, and a little later sold to a pedlar for 9d. He thought he was a lucky man when he disposed of it to a chemist in Gainsborough for 3s. It was soon sold to a bookseller for £2, who transferred it to another in the same trade for £7. It was subsequently sold to Sir Thomas Grenville for £80. At the time of this transaction Dibdin valued this book at £420, and in 1882 a perfect copy changed hands for £630.

ODD LOTS.

The mummy of an Egytian princess, said to be over 2,000 years old, which was knocked down for a few guineas at Mr. Stevens's rooms in Covent Garden, is the latest addition to the long list of weird lots which have figured in auction-sale catalogues in recent years. Not long ago, the head, little larger than a hen's egg, of a Central Mexican pigmy was on offer; and, earlier, we read of such gruesome lots as a piece of the skin of a notorious pirate, a book bound in a malefactor's skin, and a strip of epidermis labelled with Jeremy Bentham's name. A hangman's rope, a donkey's skin in pickle, coffins (bankrupt stock), and relics of prisons and criminals have all found recent purchasers; while a few years ago a Colonial official entered a London auction-room just in time to bid (if he had been so disposed) for the mummy of a Maori chieftain who had once been as a guest at his own table.

COMPROMISES IN MARRIED LIFE.

No matter how lovingly united or how sweet their accord, husband and wife rarely have the same temperaments, tendencies, or tastes. Their needs are different; their manner of looking at things is not identical, and in varying ways their individualities assert themselves. Compromise makes matrimony not only union, but unison and unity. The spirit of compromise does not mean continuous self-surrender and self-sacrifice; it does not mean ceasing to be a voice and becoming an echo; it does not imply or justify the loss of individuality; it means simply the instinctive recognition of the best way out of a difficulty, the quickest tacking to avoid a collision, the kindly view of tolerance in the presence of weakness and errors; the courage to meet an explanation half way, the generosity to be first to apologise for a discord the largeness of mind that does not fear a sacrifice of dignity in surrendering in the interests of the highest harmony of the two rather than the personal vanity of one.—"Home Chat."

THE LADIES' CORNER.

PARISIAN THEATRE DRESSES.

At the present moment the Paris theatres are beginning to close their doors for the annual "relache," and the contribution which they make to the everchanging fashions when the season is at its full height is now very limited. Nevertheless, the Comedie Francaise has given us a piece, by M. Henri Kistemackers and Eugene Delard, called the "Rivale," which affords the opportunity of admiring several very pretty costumes—good specimens of the best Parisian taste, and full of distinction. At the outset I would note the one worn, in the light role of a young and frivolous woman, by Mademoiselle Robine. It is made in a beautiful shade of peacock-blue crepe de Chine, and possesses in every wave of its folds and air of gaiety. The dresses worn by Mademoiselle Pierat, who plays the part of Simone Mortague, a young and inexperienced girl who is the victim of man's selfishness (tender and passionate by turns), are also very striking. In the first act she wears an afternoon costume of a smoked-grey colour, braided round in a shade slightly tending to rose, just as much as enlivens somewhat the monotony of the predominant tint. Afterwards she is seen in a most becoming dinner dress in soft ivory-velvet, belted with golden gauze and trimmed with touches of lace. The effect is very graceful and charming. In the third act the situation becomes more serious, and she accordingly wears mauve voile de ninon, embroidered in the same tint—a robe almost severe in tone, with even an air of melancholy pervading it.

OTHER COSTUMES.

As for Mdlle, Berthe Cerny, who plays the principal character, her toilettes are simply exquisite from every point of view. In the first act she wears soft velvet of a rosewood shade, bordered with ribeline around the foot of the skirt, and relieved by blue knots resembling the colour of Dresden porcelain—these forming a most harmonious contrast with the rest of the robe. Her dress in the second and third acts is of grey muslin, placed over other grey muslin, giving a very sober and at the same time a very "taking" effect. It includes a tunic highly embroidered in the shade of the dress, while the skirt is laden with embroidered roses. And, lastly, in the fourth act she appears in a deshabille of white and fringed crepe de Chine, which assumes an almost athletic air in the surroundings of a sculptor's studio at night time, lighted only by moonbeams. These toilettes, as well as that of Mdlle. Robine, are the creations of M. Paquin, the celebrated Parisian coutourier, whose name is in itself an authority in matters of elegance, and who designs the dresses of the principal artists in all our notable dramatic productions. A characteristic of the present fashion is the employment for our dresses of tulle, with large designs worked into it, almost similar to that which used to be seen in window-curtains. They are largely embroidered in cotton and in vegetable silk—an arrangement which gives them an aspect, not only new, but quite charming. These tulles go admirably with toile, and make together dresses light and attractive for the summer season. Silk muslins, with large painted flowers, are also much in vogue this year.

SOME NEW DESIGNS.

Some exceedingly pretty dresses have been evolved lately from the changes which are taking place in the fashions. One notable dress is of white silk muslin, covered by a Saxony-blue silk tunic, the revers and the borders being in black moire, while the corsage is enlivened with a fichu of white Liberty, which forms itself into a belt behind. The hat is trimmed with lilac of various tints. Another is of embroidered muslin and thick tulle, with a cloak of black taffeta, with rounded seams. The hat is white, with black embroideries and trimmed with white lilies. And in another design we have the skirt and the chemisette in plain white muslin pleated a la religieuse, while the jacket, draped and tailed, is kept in position by a black belt having at the back a large buckle It is made of tussore with Jour toile designs. The hat is black. It is to be noted that the first of the three models is equally attractive in either light or dark grey with black moire and red rose as trimming on the corsage. The last-mentioned style is very charming in its demureness.

BOOKS AND BOOKMEN.

The sale of Mr. Samuel's books was one of the most important events of the kind for some years. There was an unusual number of what collectors call "association books"—not the publications of learned societies, according to the older use of this phrase, but volumes which are endeared to their owner by their association with some famous man who has usually left some autograph indication of his ownership on their pages. Among the manuscripts, the first place was taken by Pope's "Essay on Man," in his own handwriting, the fair copy of the first three epistles which he prepared for the edition of 1735. This, of course, is not the "original MS." of the poem; probably, that was scribbled on odds and ends of paper, the blank pages of letters, and the fly-leaves of books, which gave so much pleasure as a chance of petty economy to "paper-sparing Pope." Still it is of great interest and no one can think that the £895 paid for it, together with one or two other relics of Pope, was an unduly inflated price. The steady growth of interest in Gilbert White was illustrated by the increase in price of the MS. of his "Selborne" from the £315—including commission—which Mr. Samuel paid for it in 1895 to £750. Among other MSS., one notices the autograph draft of Shelley's Reform pamphlet, which fetched £390, and the autograph MS. of Tennyson's. "Brook," which was sold for £300. It was the latter MS. which elicited Tennyson's famous protest against the public sale of his autograph poems in his lifetime, without his consent being even asked. His objection was mainly to the sale of verses which he had not chosen to publish. Of course, the law of copyright would afford him a remedy against any purchaser who endeavoured to print such curiosities; but it does not seem to be necessary or even desirable to prevent MSS. from being sold in the lifetime of their authors, who are not likely to be injuriously affected by an act which is, after all, a good advertisement. Many poets less famous than Tennyson would be glad of the chance to protest.

HISTORICAL WRITER'S DUTIES.

Mr. Wilfrid Scawen Blunt, in his long and interesting letter to the "Athenæum," raises an important question as to the rights and obligations of historical writers. He has been blamed for publishing in his recent "Secret History of the Occupation of Egypt" extracts from the private letters and conversations of men who are still employed in the public service. His answer is that the historian is justified in utilising any source of information whatever for the purpose of his work. He goes further, and declares that "the licence allowed to politicians of saying one thing in public and another in private" is a great source of immorality in public life. That is hardly relevant to the discussion, for it is a practically universal rule—in this country, at any rate—that what a man says or writes in private must not be brought up against him in debate. Perhaps the rule is wrong; in a Utopian world it might profitably be abolished; but there is no doubt that the decencies of public life would go by the board if it were abolished in the existing state of things. So far as history is concerned, however, the same rule is not applied. The only question at issue, then, is where the domain of history begins. Mr. Blunt recognises this in the out-spoken passage which may be quoted here:—"History, unless it is to become a mere stereotyping of the daily insincerities of Parliamentary and journalistic life, must keep itself free from every rule except that of telling the plain and simple truth, gleaned from whatever quarter, public or private, confidential or proclaimed. More than this, since it is accepted that Cabinet Ministers, for reasons of State, may every afternoon mislead questioners by equivocation, and on occasion, and when driven to the wall, even lie, without being thereby dishonoured, while in private they are still held to speak pretty frankly what they think, it is clear that their declaration in Parliament, their speeches to their constituents, and the dispatches printed in their Blue-books can have little positive value compared with the smallest contemporary and trustworthy record of their words in private. This is, indeed, now generally admitted, and the only question to determine is at what precise point the necessities of current politics which admit of lying end, and History, which demands truth and truth only, may begin to say her word. Is it to be after a hundred or fifty or after what lesser number of years; or, generally, after the death of all concerned; or, again, when no one living can seriously be injured?"

THE FOREIGN OFFICE RULE.

This is a very difficult question to answer. The Foreign Office provides an answer of a kind by its rule—not found necessary at Berlin and some other capitals—which closes to historical inspection the English documents of the last seventy years. Mr. Fyffe complained that he was seriously handicapped by this rule in writing the history of Europe from 1815 to 1848, but wherever the line was arbitrarily drawn there would be some cause of complaint. Probably the equally arbitrary rule that only the letters and other papers of dead men might be consulted would be no more satisfactory, as well as being far more difficult, if not impossible, to put into practice. Yet, without any prejudice to the merits of Mr. Blunt's book or political views, many will feel that life would be intolerable if it were generally recognised that a man still engaged in diplomatic work was always liable to find the "secret history" of an earlier but not distant period, illustrated by his private letters and diaries. The true answer to Mr. Blunt's contention is that history, in the proper sense of the word, cannot be written of any period whilst the actors in it are still living and engaged in creating more history The so-called "secret history" of any such period cannot help being more of a contentious political pamphlet than of a history, and its writer is therefore not entitled to the privileges and immunities of the historian.

GRANGERISING.

The Rev. James Granger, like Mr. Bowdler and Captain Boycott, has achieved that immortality which comes from giving a new word to the English language. To Grangerise a book is to "extra-illustrate" it, to adorn it with every kind of extraneous print or extract which can throw light upon the text. Mr. J. M. Bulloch has just begun a series of papers on this art in one of the literary weeklies, which should be of service to the collector in search of a hobby. Granger himself was not a Grangerite, just as we know that Wilkes was not a Wilkite. He founded Grangerism by publishing his "Biographical History of England," in which he pointed out "the utility of a collection of engraved portraits" to illustrate English history, being in this a forerunner of Carlyle. Collectors soon began to illustrate this work with all the old prints on which they could lay their hands, and the practice has now been extended from histories and portraits to all kinds of books—one ingenious gentleman is engaged in Grangerising a book called "Comments on Corpulency"—and to everything portable which can throw light on their subjects. The worst fault of the Grangeriser is that he has no scruples about tearing pictures or even pages out of other books in order to complete the one which he is illustrating, and it is impossible to compute the number of interesting old books which have been destroyed or rendered imperfect by this habit. The bibliolastic Basford himself, though he preceded Grangerism, was the worst of all Grangerites in this respect, for he made no bones about tearing out the title-page of any book, however rare, if he thought that it would do to illustrate his proposed history of printing.

AD INFINITUM.

Burton, in his entertaining treatise on "The Book-Hunter," gave an imaginary example of the lengths to which the confirmed Grangerite will go. He assumed that the work to be "extra-illustrated" was Dr. Watts's well-known poem—

How doth the little busy bee
Improve each shining hour,
And gather honey all the day
From every opening flower!

First would come all available or discoverable portraits of the author, of the houses in which he lived and the churches in which he had ever been known to preach. Incidentally, all kinds of views of Southampton, where he was born, would come into the scheme. When the collector arrives at illustrating the substance of the poetry, he has a happy and enduring task before him.

"All kinds of engravings of bees, Attic and other, and of beehives will be appropriate, and will be followed by portraits of Huber and other great writers on bees, and views of Mount Hybla and other honey districts. Some Scripture prints illustrative of the history of Samson, who had to do with honey and bees, will be appropriate, as well as any illustrations of the fable of the Bear and the Bees, or of the Roman story of the Sic vos non vobis. A still more appropriate form of illustration may, however, be drawn upon by remembering that a periodical called 'The Bee' was edited by Dr. Anderson."

Here come in all illustrations of the life of Dr. Anderson, of Goldsmith, and of other writers for "The Bee." Anderson was the grandfather of Outram, the Indian Bayard, and so we bring in India and French history, getting back by a circuitous route to the golden bees of Napoleon. Finally, the last line opens up the whole field of botany and of writers upon it. And so, to the really enthusiastic Grangeriser, a single stanza of moderate poetry may afford occupation for a whole lifetime. What a benefactor of the unemployed rich Granger really was!

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."
DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.
"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Olive's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."
DR. WHITMORE,

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regimenal properties, and which are found so exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination.
